
Subject: Black Naugahyde patterns - UPDATE !
Posted by braud357 on Tue, 26 Mar 2013 00:37:10 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Do any of you know what pattern of Naugahyde comes closest to matching the original Kustom "black" ? I see "Universal, Petex, Dolphin", and several others. From what I can see, the "Universal Raven Black" looks pretty close, but the illustrated samples are pretty small. Any help appreciated !

FYI - I bought some of the Naugahyde "Universal" pattern in Raven Black. It seems to be a near-perfect match to the original Naugahyde. I have a speaker cabinet back panel and the bottom of a K250 head to re-cover !

Subject: Re: Black Naugahyde patterns
Posted by stevem on Tue, 26 Mar 2013 10:54:32 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

what year amp are you speaking of?
Up to late 1972 or so they used a fine grained hide pattern, after that they went to a much courser grained pattern that had a higher gloss level to it.

Subject: Re: Black Naugahyde patterns
Posted by braud357 on Tue, 26 Mar 2013 14:08:32 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Steve, it is the pre 1972, original fine grain black naugahyde
