Which K200 head case are you looking for? There is a difference between the K200A series and K200B series cases. A series are about a half inch shallower in the depth of the A models. Bolt patterns are different and there are wood block spacers on the A models to help support the tranny and power transistors.

I've got a nice 1969 K200B-1 in black that works perfectly and looks great as well. Still has the original 2 prong power cord too. I can send you pics if you'll share an email address. The one in your above post wouldn't work for me. Thanks - Oren.
