A Kustom 200A-4 head with a 2-15L cabinet sold on ebay for $1,427.00 today. A lot more than what they give for in the price guides.

When a person has a big fire for something and the money in there pocket that can be the result!

Look at the people who pay Thousands of Dollars on on bottle of Wine while there are those starving on this planet, these types of people have a special place in Hell coming as there after life reward!

This amp is an early one with circuit breakers on the front panel. A transitional model between the Frankie heads and the K200A heads. In the photos that I have seen Fogerty's K200A-4 amps did not have the front panel circuit breakers.

Maybe Pleat would know if all of the circuit breaker heads were aluminum panels or not.

As for the selling price, if somebody wants to pay that much for this amp, more power to them. At least it is in good working condition, unlike many things that you find on eBay.

That amp was a metal faced amp. I have Both the Metal and the plexi A-4's. Hard to believe that amp went so high! And no footswitch! I love mine and have foot switches for both of them.. hope they value more when I am old and gray and need money to buy Viagra! lol
